Edward Knox appointed Chief Operating Officer for Luxembourg

Edward Knox is appointed as Chief Operating Officer for Luxembourg, succeeding Artyom Grigoryan who has decided to pursue a career opportunity outside of HSBC. Edward will report to Ewan Barr, Chief Operating Officer International Europe, and Lars Rejding, Country Chief Executive Officer HSBC Luxembourg. Edward will join the Executive Committee of HSBC in Luxembourg.

Edward has worked for ExxonMobil in London and in various positions for HSBC, most recently as Global Head of Business Support in Human Resources Operations in HSBC London, and Chief Operating Officer in HSBC Qatar and Kuwait. He brings a wealth of experience and network in the HSBC Group.

The Chief Operating Officer is responsible for ensuring coverage for all in-country Operations, Services and Technology and building an in-depth relationship with the Region. He will also assist in supporting the growth of the HSBC businesses in Luxembourg.

Commenting on Edward's appointment Lars Rejding said "I am very pleased to welcome Edward to our team to continue to build our world class franchise and support our ambitious growth plans in Luxembourg."
